China & Malaysia

Following reports that police crackdowns on gay clubs in Shanghai have involved up to 300 people, it is believed that the government is preparing for a crackdown on gay bars and clubs in other cities.

The raids come following reports that police have arrested two men for making gay videos in Beijing.

The raids were carried out by officers who entered the bars and clubs at night, arresting people on the spot.

According to a report in the China Daily, police have been investigating gay clubs and bars in Beijing for several months, and have identified several individuals who they believe to be gay.

The raids have been described as a "shakedown", with police officers demanding money from the club owners in exchange for not arresting them.

The raids are believed to be part of a larger crackdown on gay rights in China, with police officials indicating that they will continue to target gay clubs and bars in the future.

Panama

A report in the New York Times states that Panama has seen a rise in anti-gay violence.

The report cites several cases of hate crimes against gay people, including a recent incident in which a group of men attacked a gay man with a baseball bat.

The report notes that Panama has a history of violence against gay people, with many victims fearing for their safety.

The government has not taken any action to address the issue, and many experts believe that the situation is likely to get worse.

Canada

The Canadian government has announced that it will provide $10 million in funding to support gay rights organizations.

The announcement comes in response to a campaign launched by gay rights groups to pressure the government into taking action.

The funding will be used to support programs that promote gay rights and support gay people, as well as to provide legal aid to those who are discriminate against.

Olympics

The International Olympic Committee has announced that it will ban anti-gay comments at the 2008 Olympics.

The ban comes after a number of athletes and officials made anti-gay comments in recent weeks.

The ban is expected to be enforced by police officers who will be stationed at the event.

The ban has been met with mixed reactions, with some saying that it is a positive step, while others believe that it is too little too late.

England & Ireland

A new study has found that anti-gay violence is on the rise in England and Ireland.

The study, conducted by the University of Oxford, found that the number of anti-gay incidents has increased by 50% in the past year.

The study also found that many victims are afraid to report the incidents to the police.

The study has been met with widespread condemnation, with many experts calling for the government to take action to address the issue.

What a busy month April has been on this little corner of Scotland! There’s been a new look to the weekend, a Sunday for LGBT Fundraising, and loads more.

On Saturday 5th July at Queen’s Links, Aberdeenshire, the fundraising meal for the Terrence Higgins Trust was hosted by Grainger Park Hotel. The meal was held in aid of The Rainbowfeast Foundation, who took place at Carmelite in Aberdeen on Friday 4th April raising £1000 towards the cost of the event on Saturday 5th July. They would like to thank everyone who came along on the evening as well as all those who couldn’t make it.

Painted Eggs

Martin Walker sits on Nicolle Dallker, writer and star of The Luvvies’ latest stage production, Painted Eggs.

What did you learn making Painted Eggs?

Painted Eggs originated over three years ago, although it was credited to be a play. The original idea was a music project, with a story to be told on stage. The project then evolved into a play which was scripted. As a standalone project, it was a musical play with a story that was more about staging a play, and also focus on writing Painted Eggs.

How long did Painted Eggs take to write?

The first version, which was released in August 2007, was less than 6 months from the original idea. The final version was completed in September 2008.

How many of the events discussed in Painted Eggs are real?

Painted Eggs is a mix of real and creative fiction. It is based on real events that have happened to the writer, Nicolle Dallker. The story is a mixture of fact and fiction, and some events are taken from the author’s own experiences. The play is a combination of real life events and creative elements.

What are your favourite albums?

I am a music lover, and I enjoy listening to different genres of music. Some of my favourite albums include "Selling England by the Pound" by Genesis, "The Dark Side of the Moon" by Pink Floyd, and "Abbey Road" by The Beatles. I also enjoy listening to music from the 1970s and 1980s. The music is an integral part of the play, and is used to express different emotions and moods.

What would you say to others who want to transition?

I would say that it is a personal decision that should be made by the individual. It is important to consider all the options and to seek professional advice. The transition process can be difficult, but it is important to have support and understanding from those around you.

How would you like to be remembered?

I would like to be remembered for my contributions to the LGBT community, and for my dedication to social justice. I am passionate about raising awareness of the issues faced by transgender people, and I hope to inspire others to join me in this important work.

What are your current projects?

I am currently working on a new music project, which will be released later this year. I am also working on a new book, which will be published in the future. I am also involved in a film project, which will be released in 2019.

How would you like to be remembered?

I would like to be remembered for my contributions to the LGBT community, and for my dedication to social justice. I am passionate about raising awareness of the issues faced by transgender people, and I hope to inspire others to join me in this important work.
Fruit Cocktail

This book was written as a sequel to the author's previous novel, "On Picking Fruit," and continues the story of the main character, Virgil. It is a laugh out loud type of story with Wild, witty, sexy, twisted, horrifying and complex plotlines. But then it seems that this is interspersed with even stranger italic prose. You know what's it like, sometimes you think you're reading a book and then you're not sure if you are. The author possesses a sense of humor that is definitely different. It deals with real, in that you might find yourself in the same situation as the characters, but in a different way.
