The Severity of the 101
is Inversely Proportional To the Ability To Resist
The Blue Moon Café is twenty-one years old

After 21 years of continuous service to our LGBT Community, The Blue Moon Café celebrated with two parties during February to commemorate this auspicious event.

The variety of different owners over the years all believed in ‘Keeping The Pink Pound Poo’ so they were, and still are, all LGBT owners.

The Blue Moon Café was born during the first week in February 1988 in Edinburgh’s original LGBT Centre at 60 Broughton Street, where the 1st owners bought out the LGBT owned and run Stonewall Co-Operative Café, the predecessor which was the 1st LGBT Café in Scotland and the 2nd in the UK by just one day! 60 Scotland’s first LGBT owned and run café is actually more than 21 years old if you wish to look at that way.

Over the years, The Blue Moon Café proved to be so successful that they had to relocate to their larger and current premises on the corner of Broughton Street and Murray Street. Congratulations to all who have been involved over the decades, and may your success continue.

BIRTHDAY TWO

QS is one year old

Soutobrightly congratulates QS Magazine as they reach their first birthday. QS are celebrating with a birthday party on Friday 30th March at 10pm in GHQ in Edinburgh, and you are invited to celebrate with them and a whole host of performers. See you there!
Glasgow

Glasgow is a city that gives and takes, but never gives up. It's a city where the past meets the present, and the future is always on the horizon. The people here are as diverse as the city itself, and that's what makes Glasgow so special. Whether you're a local or a visitor, there's always something new to discover in this vibrant city.

NEWS

Good grief another month has indeed arrived and it seems that it's getting warmer every day! There may indeed be a credit crunch upon us but I don't see prices going up for any game companies. (for anyone wanting to know the position of the MEI café and bar on Bell Street, due to a recent death there had to be their door due to licensing issues but have been assured they are working hard to resolve these matters and shall be up and running soon again. Fun. or so you were being told!) Starting with some good news on some much needed venues for anyone wanting to know the position of the MEI café and bar on Bell Street, due to a recent death there had to be their door closed. There was no evidence they had been involved with this event, and they are working hard to resolve these matters and shall be up and running soon again. Fun. or so you were being told!

What should our ScotsGay readers expect from your show?

People who interview comedians about their show always ask, "What can we expect?" Which I find very odd. I can say there will be a theatre and me on a stage with a mic, talking for about 1 hour 20 mins. It’s like asking a band about to play somewhere, "What can we expect?" When you know there’s going to be music.

I talk a little about the modern world which is fucking insane and pointless. You sometimes don’t get much of a taste of how fucked up things are on a global scale. Living in Scotland, down in London I have noticed so many changes in the last 20 years, and although it’s a wonderfully vibrant place, it’s a real slice of world, and the world is the most complicated and stupid it’s ever been. I talk about food in my show and what a fucking minefield of moral considerations it has become.

I tell stories about my own life and it all just flows along. Can’t tell you too much now. I have just finished a three-month tour of the UK of a show that I performed at the Festival but didn’t take anywhere. I got offered some dates in Scotland, so naturally I took them. What’s next for Rhona Cameron?

I have just pitched a couple of ideas to TV which I would write and produce. It looks like I will begin development of these soon. Can’t say what it’s about at this moment as I’m afraid to tell. I am always asked about my ‘Sometimes Speech’ on ‘I’m A Celebrity...Get Me Out Of Here!’ and it is now part of television folklore. I am always asked about my ‘Sometimes Speech’ on ‘I’m A Celebrity...Get Me Out Of Here!’ and it is now part of television folklore.

You have a new website and blog.

I was forced to do a website, it’s very simple and mostly there to keep the nice people who support me informed as to what I’m up to. I have a new blog. I have only set up an introduction to it so far but am actually looking forward to writing in it. I’m all in favour of writing. I think the Internet has contributed massively to the dehumanisation of our world.
